About Me:

I joined It Works Global as an Independent Distributor in September 2009. At the time, I was taking a personal finance class where we talked about increasing our income. A few months proir I went to an It Works wrap party and the girl who ran the party I went to high school with. Her story was amazing but I felt my life was too busy to add to my plate but one day I read my horoscope and it read: It’s a good time to start a part-time business. Get the ideas ready over the next 30 days and put them into action before the end of the year. So I did about a month later and its been great meeting people while growing as a person.

I am a Marketing student at Baker College and I’ve been into natural remedies so It Works is for me and my future. Step by step, paying off credit cards, and getting a new car, and to one day say “I’m debt free”.Being a health coach has all sorts of benefits from meeting others to see their results with our products. It feels so right to be a part of something so good.
